

ANOTHER WONDERFUL SHOE PURCHASE BY SHEINWALD!

I Buy the Entire Stock of Fine Shoes From One of New England's Best Retailers

AND WILL SELL EVERYTHING AT LESS THAN 40¢ ON THE DOLLAR

A Disagreement Between a Big Manufacturer and a Big Retailer Recently Threw a Big Stock of Fine Shoes into My Hands for Spot Cash. The trouble of the manufacturer and retailer gave Sheinwald a lucky purchase. For spot cash I grab all the big stocks I can get hold of and always give my customers the benefit of the finest shoes at the lowest prices. This is the reason that I do such a tremendous business and keep all my customers. The people have faith in SHEINWALD because he backs up his advertising with the Value. It is only a few weeks to Christmas—do your shopping early if you need Shoes, Rubbers, Slippers and Footwear of every description, remember you can get the best for less money at Sheinwald's. No better shoes any place—no place with such low prices.

"Less Than Half-Price" Shoe Sale a Big Hit

I know that this sale of a high class retailer's fine stock at less than 40c on the Dollar is going to pack my store Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It will be the Big Hit of the Christmas Season.

SHOES AND SLIPPERS—USEFUL CHRISTMAS PRESENTS

Fathers and Mothers should not put their money into foolish Christmas presents for the children. Buy them something necessary and useful. Buy Shoes, High Boots, Rubbers and Slippers. I am going to do my share towards giving you all a Christmas present by selling you anything you want in footwear at money saving prices. Remember I have the biggest retail shoe store in New England. I employ over 40 polite, well trained shoe clerks who will show you every attention. Do your Christmas shoe shopping early and do it at Sheinwald's.

SHEINWALD gives you the greatest opportunity to save money on your footwear—for yourself or your presents.

SHEINWALD will sell you a pair of $2 Fur Trimmed Julietts for 57¢—no one else will.

SHEINWALD will sell you a pair of Boys' $1.00 Slippers for 37¢—no other store will do it.

SHEINWALD will sell you a pair of Men's $1.50 Slippers for 47¢—5 styles—other stores can't do it.

Now Comes the Main Feature—SHEINWALD will sell you Ladies' and Grown Girls' High Storm $6 Boots for $2.45—who else dares do it?

—Detailed list of a "Gold Coast" Harvard student's tailor bill.

If anyone wonders why they call it the "Gold Coast" they can learn from the bill for $2,000 that against Edward M. Stone of South Hill road, Milton, Harvard '02 and Harvard Law School '06, by an attorney for Chalmers Brothers, firm of culture in Boston Avenue.

It is charged Stone bought the articles in a little over two months, when he was connected with the United States Legation in Argentina in 1910 and early in 1911. When he was a gold-coaster, he had wide reputation as a luxurious dresser.

Soon after he was graduated from Harvard the young man traveled and later became connected with the legation of Rio, where he remained until his return home early last year. Since last Spring he has been travelling in Europe with his sister, Elizabeth, and they are now both reported to be in Paris.

For a time after his home from Boston Avenue he spent much of his time in Boston and, resided in Medford.

SOCIETY GREET'S BROOKLINE GIRL

A coming-out party of interest to Boston and Brookline society was that given for Miss Edith W. Farnsworth by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Farnsworth, of Brookline. The reception, which was held at the Farnsworth home on Parkside road, Brookline, was followed by dancing.

Miss Farnsworth was a becoming gown of white satin trimmed with lace.

Assisting in pouring were Miss Emma Farnsworth, a cousin of the debutante; Miss Alice Perkins, Miss Anna L. Thorne, Miss Evelyn Hittcock, Miss Alice Allen, Miss Margaret R. Lincoln, Miss Margaret Stone, Miss Eleanor Winslow Williams, Miss Mary Bryant, Miss Miriam Young, Miss Mary Lord, Miss Edith Holder and Miss Margaret Stone.

OUTSIDER'S PLAY BY HARVARD CLUB

For the first time in its history, the Harvard Dramatic Club has selected as one of its Fall plays a drama by a man not connected with Harvard. This play is "The Value of the People," by D. C. Rich, '07, who is no longer connected with Harvard. The author had other plays produced by the Dramatic Club, notably "The New Age" in 1910, and has since had plays produced professionally.

AMERICANS SAFE IN TYPHON ZONE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—No Americans were killed or injured in the Philippines typhoon, November 25, and only one American, J. W. Green of the Crown Hardware Company, who left Hilo, Hawaii, November 25 for Honolulu in a launch, is reported missing. The Bureau of Harbor Affairs is not advised as to Mr. Green's United States residence. It is a telegram from the acting Governor General it is stated that Mr. Green's wife is now on her way to the States.

GERMAN BAN ON AMERICAN WIVES

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—The entry of American women into the German Diplomatic Corps is forbidden from now on, according to a ruling of Imperial Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, who has entered the regulation made by the late Prince Bismarck, prohibiting German diplomats from marrying foreigners.

SELECT SUCCESSOR TO GOVERNOR WILSON

TRENTON, Dec. 4.—Numerous statements of the next New Jersey Legislature in caucus selected Senator James F. Foster of Hudson County as the nominee for president of the Senate. He will succeed Governor Wilson when the latter resigns.

MISS FARNSWORTH, WHO MADE SOCIETY BOW AT DANCE

MISS FARNSWORTH, WHO MADE SOCIETY BOW AT DANCE

SEEKS DIVORCE AFTER 49 YEARS

Within a year of their golden wedding anniversary, Mrs. Edith H. Kendall of Hyde Park and her husband, Edward A. Kendall of Hyde Park, have decided and Mrs. Kendall is seeking a divorce.

The case is on the list for a hearing in the North Superior Civil Court this week. Mrs. Kendall charges cruel and abusive treatment and neglect to support. She specifies October 10, 1910, as the date on which it occurred, about forty-seven years after they were married, and the neglect as following that period.

Mrs. Kendall will be obliged to make a fight, as her husband will contest the case.

SUES FOR CITY OF ROCKLAND CRASH

Gilbert F. Rodas of Milford filed through his attorney, Fred A. Wall, a suit for $10,000 in the East Cambridge Court against the Eastern Steamship Company. It alleges he was hurt when the City of Rockland ran into a collar last July.

TELEGRAPH BREVITIES

BEID, Ore.—Arriving here at midnight from Connecticut, Mrs. George Palmer Putnam, wife of Mayor Putnam, was here today across the continent to cast her first vote for her husband, who is a candidate for reelection. Mrs. Putnam, who was Miss Blinn of Sound Beach, Ct., is a Wellesley graduate.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—Mrs. Annabelle Anderson, one of St. Louis' few women attorneys, will abandon matrimony for the practice of her profession. A divorce was granted to her by Judge Walter H. Amodeo.

WASHINGTON.—A final statement of the campaign expenses was filed today by "Underdog" Taft. He certified that he spent $2,012.22.

NEW YORK.—When Augustus Miller, chauffeur, told "Thank you" to Magistrate Kotler for giving him $10 for permitting his suit to be made, the judge found him a little bit.

PHILADELPHIA.—Edward D. Henning, just discharged, found more than $100,000 worth of stamps in $5 worth of waste paper.

"SYRUP OF FIGS" FOR INDIGESTION, BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION

Better than castor oil, calomel or cathartics to cleanse your stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels. Harmless laxative for men, women and children.

Primitive folk did not need laxatives. They lived outdoors, ate plenty of fruit, and all of their food was coarse. We modern people are different. We skitter too little, eat little fruit, and our food is too fine—too rich.

We simply can't have our ten yards of bowels clogged up, liver choked with sour bile and stomach full of foul effluvia and feel well. It means that the food and waste retained in the stomach and bowels ferment—decay. The decay creates poisons, gases and acids, and these poisons are absorbed into the blood through the very ducts intended to suck in the nutriment. Then we have our heads aching, becoming dull, bilious, tongue coated, nervous, meals don't digest, and we feel miserable all over. So we must make our choice.

We must live like primitive folk. We must take artificial means to move the excess bile and waste matter on and out of the system.

The safest, most harmless and effective stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator for men, women and children is a different Syrup of Figs, which doesn't irritate, grip or scald. Its effect is the effect of fruits. It is composed entirely of succulent figs, senna and aromatics. Don't think you are drugging yourself. Syrup of Figs can be constantly used without harm.

Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elix. of Senna," and see on the label that it is prepared by The California Fig Syrup Company. This is the only genuine—the old reliable. Beware, with contempt, the so-called Fig Syrup imitations. Some will make you choke.

The Mayor's Fingers and Mellen's Thumbs

Mayor Fiske of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., picks with his bare fingers thirty-six rusty spikes, within a quarter-mile, from the rotten ties of the New York & New Haven Railroad.

President Mellen picks from a confiding and mistreated people the princely revenue which he uses not for maintenance of tracks and rolling stock and safety device, but for purchase of competing lines at extravagant prices to create his traffic monopoly.

There is not an even respectable railroad in the farther West or further South whose general manager would not fire an inspector whose tracks presented such a criminal line of rotten death-dealing foundation for the swift passage of modern railway trains.

The public is waiting to see whether a single stockholder or director demands the dismissal or suspension, or even the rebuke of the money-making president who has already seen the three-time wreckage of his great passenger trains, and the killing or maiming of his passengers, by his careless crime of non-equipment.

The very crown and finish of American civilization in travel and safety is presumptuously in this rich and populous section between New York and Boston.

And yet—thirty-six rusty spikes in thirty-six rotten ties in the most dangerous stretch of track on the rich New Haven road!

Does President Mellen expect his death-dealing lines to remain un-repaired until the Mayors of the several cities stroll out and report upon the physical condition of the tracks?

Or perhaps the Mayors might contribute to the hire of an inspector of tracks.

Or perhaps the States might play a timely part.

The Dissolution of the Harriman Merger

Edward H. Harriman spent the best years of his life in working out a railroad consolidation. His work has now been declared void by the United States Supreme Court. His principal contribution to the transportation problem of his country is branded lawless.

When the news of the impending "dissolution" of the Harriman merger reached Wall Street Monday, Union Pacific 4 per cent. bonds jumped from 89 to 96. Other Harriman securities rose in proportion. Thus it appears that the great Harriman work in restraint of transcontinental trade has not yet been wholly undone.

The general view of the stock brokers is that there are more melons to be picked from this walled garden of monopoly—that the "dissolution" of the Harriman merger will be as profitable to insiders as the dissolution of the American Tobacco Company at id est consequenter.

The building of the Union Pacific produced the Credit Mobilier and the most blighting congressional scandal that this country has ever known. The Southern Pacific is a proverb of high commercial taxation. The best-remembered saying of C. P. Huntington is: "All the traffic will bear."

Harriman, Huntington, Oakes Ames, were all men of extraordinary ability. But their exceptional brain-power was not dedicated to commerce. It was devoted to the creation of private fortunes—at the expense of competition.

The highest Legislature and the highest court of the country have not yet found a way of undoing the restraints of trade that have been engineered by private cities and the power of the money.

The country waits, with open arms, for the coming of men with a genius for commerce that shall outstep the genius of obstruction.

The Lists Drawn in Europe

The hope of Europe is that Austria will back down. And yet it is hard to believe that Austria will back down—since she is now unequivocally backed up by Germany.

The German Chancellor, von Bethmann-Hollweg, said Monday in the Reichstag: "If Austria shall be attacked by a third party"—meaning Russia—"we will fight."

The new Russian Duma is reactionary. The Russian people—of the middle and upper classes—are jingoists. They are full of fight. Can the Czar yield again to a German menace, as he did in the case of Bosnia and Herzegovina? The best-informed say he cannot. That if he did there would be a "palace revolution."

How, then, can Russia withdraw from its commitment to the cause of Serbia? How can it dam the current of the Slavonic tide of victory? Plainly, the hope of Europe is that Austria will back down. It is a slender hope.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

CASES OF CIVIL WAR
MILITARY BOSTON AMERICAN:
Dear Sir—In a recent article in Harvard Magazine, Professor, the Italian historian, shows how Publius Claudius' alleged invasion of Caesar's empire, as depicted as a woman led to civil war. But historians, with few of no exception, on the far side of the Atlantic, attribute the course of events to the will of the sovereign, or to the power of some strong personality.

Viewing this subject, as an Italian author, I would like the writer named now reveal, particularly observes that Claudius, as a man, ignores the fact that a man's king only by the consent of others, and that this consent is based upon the fact that the sovereign's exercise of political power accords with the interest of those who lead him their support. Hence, he would the more dangerous monarch the material interest of the dominant class. It is to be attributed not so much to the successful disguise of Publius Claudius as to the fact that the power which he exercised had been taken from him and was being transferred to commerce and profit making.

Conquest of Mt. McKinley Is Lesson for All

Struggle with Difficult Peaks Is Business of Our Lives—We are Better Off for Mountains to Ascend

By GARRETT P. SERVIES.

It seems the Magazine for December you will read the story of the final "conquest" of Mt. McKinley, the loftiest mountain in North America, and you will see photographs that will thrill you with the excitement of danger and difficulties met and overcome. It is a remarkable story of a wonderful feat.

But we are all philosophers, often without knowing it, and many will ask: "What is the good of this desperate mountain-climbing; what does humanity gain by it, after all?"

Difficult to Answer

From a strictly utilitarian point of view it is difficult to answer such question. If you are one of those who think that nothing is worth while unless it can be expressed in dollars and cents, there is no answer that will satisfy you. The climbing of Mt. McKinley was simply the achievement of an ideal, and nobody can appreciate it whose one life is not led on the uplands of idealism, and whose nature does not demand something more than food, drink, clothes and ordinary social amusements.

But to those who do not seek noble ideals before their souls, and who believe that utilitarianism is the usual sense, there is no answer. It is in the nature of man's higher nature, the feat of Professor Parry and Mr. Hovey will appeal with the mysterious force of a great poem—a poem written not in words but in achievement.

Unbroken Courage Won

Wase French, who afterward was the title of "the Great," found himself, like a bull in the ring, surrounded and surrounded by his enemies. He was alone, his army in flight, his capital captured, his palace looted, his friends falling away, every circumstance against him, but his courage and resolution unbroken, he was climbing Mt. McKinley, and he got to the top.

When Robert Bruce, the Scotch hero, lying on his back, a fugitive from his kingdom—alone, deserted and half-starved—was a spider's web broken like a downy line to the ceiling, never giving up his efforts until at last it made the web fast, he was watching the conquest of Mt. McKinley, and he learned the lesson so well that he himself soon stood on the pinnacle.

Every man has his Mt. McKinley, if he is good for anything. Those who have none are of little use to themselves or anybody else. It is only by continuous, unflinching effort that a man can perfect himself. If you find yourself becoming lazy, indifferent, easily discouraged, disposed to think that fortune has turned her back on you, or if the world loses its interest for you, and you begin to let things slide as they will, wake up! Use a mountain to climb, don't every day the rich and life—their knowledge of the joy and strength that come from the conquest of difficulties. But as I said before you, and mount, over the crevasses, the chasms, the snow slopes, the ridges, the precipices, fighting the winds, the cold, and the fatigue, until you are the world at your feet.

There are many great mountains still to be ascended, both in the physical and the moral world. No man has ever yet reached even the foot of Mt. Everest, the highest point on the globe. Explorers have gazed longingly at its glowing summit from the tops of lower peaks a hundred miles away. Some day they will climb it.

One Secret Still Hidden
No man has yet climbed the secret of life, the secret of the universe, the secret of the human mind, the secret of the human soul. It is a secret that will make the world a better place, and the human race a happier one. It is a secret that will make the world a better place, and the human race a happier one. It is a secret that will make the world a better place, and the human race a happier one.

Matrimony—Over-worked Husbands and Wives Invariably Prove the Stumbling Block to the Happiness of Each Other.

By DOROTHY DIX.

It is a fact that matrimony is a very general practice, is a pretty dreary affair, and that most husbands and wives, if they told the truth, would confess to wondering why they let themselves in for a thing that has so many more blots than highlights. The average wife complains that she is nothing but a domestic slave, she spends her days in a dull round of monotonous duties and in preventing petty commotion. She cooks and sews and cleans and waits the coffee-making baby and bludge up cut fingers and pines and stings and aches, week after week, month after month, year after year.

For reward she has the grumbling of a husband who is never quite pleased, who takes all of her labor and her sacrifice without thanks or praise, and who does out the money for the necessary family expenses with remarks about her extravagance that bluster her very soul. On his part the average married man says that he is nothing but a beast of burden. That he spends his life starting to support a family where he can never have enough, and that all that he gets out of his labor are the worst clothes in the family and the heavy parts of the chicken, and the privilege of being bowed by a wife who makes the Czar of Russia look like a liberal ruler.

For reward he gets complaints and nagging at home and the conversation of a wife who is always reminding him of Augustus Pugin, when she might have married and who has given none a million.

Lot of Either Wife or Husband Proves a Dreary One.

Also he fully informed concerning all the good clothes that other men's wives have, and that his wife does not have, and would like to have. Now it is only too true that the changes of both the husband and wife are justified. Neither one has overestimated the dreariness of his or her lot. It takes money to give the glamour of matrimony, and in a family where the pocketbook is always lean, and its victim's life is stripped of all its gay and those that dwell in their married lives they get a good close view of it.

For the poor man and his wife married life is an eternal round of self-interest and privation. Doing housework and running things in and out and monotonous. Doing without pretty clothes and amusements and gayeties and luxuries, and in a position to be 12 hard and discouraging to a man to see every dollar that he earns disappear by family expenses and to know that he can never get ahead in the race of life because of the weight he carries. It is hard to be a man—litter, biting hard—know that he must deny himself every diversion and that he cannot ever stop and rest, and that she would rather be a wife and wear bouquans than be any other man's wife dressed in silk and satin, and that man will not feel that he is an object of public sympathy because he has to spend his money on his family instead of in a poker game.

Man Should Appreciate Hands That Helped His Progress
Let a man know that he still takes some interest in holding his wife rough-kneed hand and she will cheerfully work it to the bone for him, nor will she ever utter a complaint about not being able to buy a three dollar and fifty cent hat if she feels that it gives him because he can't give her a dozen hundred and fifty dollar one.

It is the spirit in which we do a thing that makes it work or fail, and the difference between the happy married and the unhappy, is just a matter of whether they love each other enough to get their pleasure out of doing something else for the other.

IN THE FOREST

By William F. Kirk

TWO twin leaves hung to a maple twig; One was little, the other was big. The little one hated and feared the world, And into a selfish scroll it curled. "I'll cheat the wind," it said with a frown; "No breeze in the forest can blow me down." But it flew, in a gale, from its slender self—The name of the little leaf was Self.

The big leaf lived in riotous joy, And played with the wind like a happy boy. It gave each zephyr a fond caress Till it got from the wind a crimson dress—A crimson dress with edges of gold, Like the robes that were worn by the kings of old. And, a king, it dropped from the twig above, For the name of the crimson leaf was Love.
